

What is Analytical Thinking?

Analytical thinking is the ability to:

Identify a problem or question.

Gather relevant information.

Break down that information into smaller pieces.

Examine these pieces for connections, patterns, and causes.

Develop logical solutions or conclusions based on your analysis.

It's a step-by-step process. You don't just jump to answers. You think it through.